

DENIES IMPEACHMENT CHARGES TO SENATE

JUDGE ROBERT W. ARCHBALD OF COMMERCE COURT FORMALLY DENIES ALL ALLEGATIONS MADE.

ANSWER TO ARTICLES

Declares That None of Thirteen Articles, Even if True, Constituted an Impeachable Offense.

Washington, July 29.—Judge Robert W. Archbald of the Commerce Court in answer to the impeachment articles in the House of Representatives, today formally denied to the Senate sitting as a Court of Impeachment that he ever had used his office or his influence as a judge for profit, that he ever undertook for a consideration to compromise litigation before the Interstate Commerce Commission, that he ever wrongfully used his position to obtain credit from litigants before him, or that he had undertaken to carry on a general business for profit or speculation in coal properties, as charged in the House indictment.

To each of the thirteen articles of impeachment Judge Archbald replied that none, even if true, constituted an impeachable offense, a high crime or a misdemeanor as defined by the Constitution. Many statements contained in the allegations were not disputed, while others were totally denied, and annulment of others was asked on the ground that they were too vague to admit of proper defense.

Judge Archbald admitted his participation in the now noted "Katydid" culm bank deal with Edward J. Williams of Scranton and the Hillside Coal and Iron Company, a subsidiary of the Erie Railroad, which then had cases pending in his court, but he denied that he willfully or unlawfully or corruptly took any advantage of his position to induce the railroad officials to deal with him and his partner.

The accused jurist denied that he at any time for a consideration agreed to assist George M. Watson, a Scranton lawyer, to settle a case in which the Marican Coal Company was complainant against the Lackawanna Railroad before the Interstate Commerce Commission. William P. Boland and his brother, Christopher and James, are principal stockholders in the coal company and William P. Boland was the author of some of the charges on which the House Judiciary Committee reported articles of impeachment. The judge's answer today set out that his participation in the negotiations with officials of the Lackawanna railroad for settlement of the case was purely out of friendship for Watson and Christopher G. Boland and that all his acts were without promise or expectation of compensation of any kind.

In reply to the charge that he and his associates secured from the Lehigh Valley railroad a lease on Coal dump No. 2, owned by the city of Philadelphia as trustee for the heirs of the late John H. Jones, Judge Archbald denied that the transaction did not involve unlawful or corrupt use of his office. Some details of this article were omitted.

MEXICANS THREATEN TO KILL AMERICANS

Refugees Who Arrive at El Paso Claim Orozco Has Issued Orders for American Massacre.

El Paso, July 29.—Louis Lach, a Mormon from Dubuque, who arrived with his family last night, said today: "General Salazar told us at Casas Grandes and again at Pearson that if Americans within the next few days rebels will begin to kill every American they find and keep up the massacre until America is forced to cross the border. Salazar stated that it was the direct order of General Orozco."

Ominous reports from the Mexican frontier declaring that rebels had determined to disarm Americans in the insurrecto zone, and that guarantees of protection were to be withdrawn, were confirmed in part today by Louis Lach, a Mormon, who fled from Colony Dubland with his family last night.

The speech of acceptance which Governor Wilson will deliver here August 1, when he formally is notified of his nomination for the presidency, is completed, and probably will be in the printers' hands tomorrow.

At Trenton, tomorrow, where Governor Wilson plans to spend the day, the nominee expects to meet Lewis Nixon, the ship-builder, Senator Ellison Durant Smith of South Carolina, and former Lieutenant Governor Ellison of Virginia. There also are many matters of state awaiting his attention at the capitol. The remainder of the week will be a busy one.

Duluth, Minn., July 29.—Agitators have been at work among the men employed on the ore docks during the past week, seeking to get the men out on a strike for higher wages, according to information given by one of the men today. Officials of the docks scout the idea of any unrest among the men.

NEGRO PORTER ARRESTED ON A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Duluth, Minn., July 29.—When "Jack", aged 40, a negro porter on the Northern Pacific railway, arrived in Duluth last night, from the Twin Cities he was arrested by Sheriff Meinig on a charge of having committed a serious transaction had no relevancy to the judge's action, and that in the court decision he acted solely upon his judgment of the merits of the law suit presented. If the note was presented to John T. Lenahan, one of the attorneys in the case, for discount, it was done without Judge Archbald's consent, the answer said.

THINK BODY IS THAT OF MISS SNODGRASS

Body of Woman Found in Creek Near Catskill, N. Y., Thought to Be That of Missing Trained Nurse.

Catskill, N. Y., July 29.—The body of a woman found in the mud of Catskill creek may prove to be that of Miss Dorcas Snodgrass, the missing Mount Vernon nurse. The woman was dressed in a linen crash suit and wore a diamond ring and a Christian Endeavor pin.

Although the coroner does not believe the body has been in the creek more than three or four days, it was badly decomposed and it has been impossible to determine whether the woman met death by violence. Miss Snodgrass disappeared ten days ago.

On Board Steamship. Mount Vernon, N. Y., July 29.—Relatives of Miss Dorcas Snodgrass do not believe the body found at Catskill, N. Y., is her's. The belief is growing here that Miss Snodgrass is aboard the steamship Minnehaha, which sailed Saturday for Southampton.

Following receipt of a wireless telegram from a Mrs. Cecelia Rosenbaum aboard the Minnehaha stating Miss Snodgrass was aboard, relatives here sent a message to the captain asking for definite information. Although Mrs. Rosenbaum is not known here it is supposed that Miss Snodgrass may have sailed with her as a trained nurse.

Albany, N. Y., July 29.—The body of the woman found laying face downwards in the mud and reeds along Catskill creek yesterday afternoon is believed to be that of Miss Dorcas Snodgrass, a nurse who has been missing from Mount Vernon, N. Y., since July 17. A report from Catskill states that the woman's underclothing is marked "Snodgrass."

Jewelry on Body. On the body was an expensive belt buckle, a diamond ring and a Christian Endeavor pin. Her pocketbook containing $2.45 hung on her arm.

The position of the body when found was such that the authorities believe it could not have drifted into the creek from the Hudson river. No marks of violence were found. One theory put forth is that she may have been drugged or poisoned and thrown into the creek.

COLONEL COMPARES TAFT AND LORIMER

Roosevelt Compares Renomination of President to Election of Illinois Senator.

Oyster Bay, July 28.—The renomination of President by the republican national convention was compared by Colonel Roosevelt today to the election of William Lorimer to the United States senate. The two cases he declared stand on the same moral plane and Mr. Taft's nomination in his opinion can be defended only upon grounds which justify Mr. Lorimer's election. Had the Chicago convention been organized honestly there would have been a majority of over 100 against Mr. Taft.

Col. Roosevelt's statement was in reply to the administration's defense of the proceedings at Chicago which was issued yesterday at Washington.

ADVERSE REPORT ON MONEY TRUST PROBE MADE BY COMMITTEE

Pujo Resolution for Investigation of National Banks Voted Down by Senate Committee, Seven to Six.

Washington, July 29.—By a vote of six to seven the senate finance committee today agreed to adversely report the Pujo resolution to especially empower the house "money trust" committee to investigate national banks. Chairman Pujo holds the committee has general power to do so and will proceed on that.

Senators McCumber, and La Follette republican senators, joined four democratic senators Simmons, Williams, Kern and Johnson of Maine in voting for the resolution. Senator Bailey was the only democrat who voted against it.

The minority members paved the way for a fight on the floor over the matter by getting permission to make a minority report and to amend the resolution to limit the inquisitorial powers conferred upon the house committee the resolution authorizing an investigation into the "money trust."

The house ways and means committee determined to reintroduce the democratic cotton tariff bill which was passed at the last session of congress and vetoed by President Taft.

MIMIC WARFARE IN VICINITY OF TOMAH

More Conflicts Between Red and Blue Armies Expected Today in Military Maneuvers.

Blue Army Camp near Tomah, Wis., July 29.—More conflicts between the red and blue armies were expected to occur today in the vicinity of Tomah which was retaken by the blues Sunday and through which the reds were forced to beat a hurried retreat yesterday.

The reds were chased back seven miles, but they now hold a good position. They were protected by a rocky ridge which would make flanking movements practically impossible. Outposts were stationed throughout the city at Tomah and many patrolled the roads, bridges and crossroads west of the town where the reds are supposed to be camped. A troop of blue cavalry, in making a flank movement yesterday, surprised a force of reds on horses in the city but the superior number of red horsemen made a short encounter.

Hundreds of citizens who heard the reports of rifles and expected a battle to occur in the city itself, rushed to the scene of the conflict two miles out of the city and there witnessed the mimic warfare.

Among the interested spectators were many young Indians who attend the Tomah Indian schools. The cracking of rifles amused them immensely.

FEW DOCK WORKERS RETURNED TO WORK

Refusal to Obey Orders Issued by Strike Leaders Will Result in Prolonged Struggle.

London, July 29.—The refusal of the dock workers in London to obey the manifesto issued by strike leaders on Saturday, declaring the strike at an end after it had lasted ten weeks, was given practical effect today when very few of the men returned to work. The strikers are generally of the opinion that there leaders have betrayed them into an unconditional surrender.

A new spirit seems to have entered into the men and today it was observed that most of them displayed a much more ugly temper than hitherto. On this account a stronger force of police than usual was stationed at the dock gates to protect the non-striking. These men appeared in their usual numbers. The secretary of the strike committee this morning said the strike probably will be resumed.

DRAGNET IS CLOSING AROUND MURDERERS

New York, July 29.—District Attorney Whitman is said to be receiving reports from the investigations of private detectives that make him feel he is now on sure ground and that the capture of the slayers of the gambler, Herman Rosenthal, soon will be an accomplished fact.

The public prosecutor has heard that the five assassins, after shooting Rosenthal, fled to Rockaway and there in a gambling house lost the proceeds of their crime on gaming tables. Once broke the slayers came back to this city and went into hiding. The gambling house in which they played is said to be owned by "Bald Jack" Rosse, one of the men now under arrest in connection with the shooting of Rosenthal. Rose, it is said, saw to it that the slayer with the proceeds of their crime, were taken to the Rockaway gaming house.

Five thousand dollars is said to have been the price paid for the killing of Rosenthal and the private detectives have confirmed the information that no less than twenty persons were involved in the plot.

LENGTHY STATEMENT WAS ISSUED TODAY

DOCUMENT DEFENDING TAFT'S NOMINATION MADE PUBLIC AT WHITE HOUSE.

REFUTES ALL CHARGES

Detailed Denial is Made That Renomination of President Was Accomplished by Seating of Fraudulently Elected Delegates.

Washington, July 29.—A statement, approved by President Taft, defending his nomination by the Chicago convention, was made public at the White House. It reviews every contest before the Republican National Committee and the credentials committee of the convention and asserts that each contest was settled logically, upon its merits. The statement was submitted to the cabinet at a recent meeting and received the approval of the President's official family.

The statement which is a lengthy document, of 144 printed pages, is a detailed denial of the charge that the renomination of President Taft was accomplished by the seating of fraudulently elected delegates to the convention. It takes up individually the 238 contests instituted by the Roosevelt forces against Taft delegates who were seated, and presents evidence in each of these cases to show that the Taft delegates were regularly elected.

A resume of the statement, prepared by Charles D. Hilles, formerly President Taft's secretary and now chairman of the Republican National Committee takes up each contest briefly.

This resume opens with the declaration that the Roosevelt contests, as originally filed before the National Committee were not instituted in good faith.

"The total number of delegates summoned to the convention," says the resume, "was 1,078, with 540 necessary to a choice. Mr. Taft had 561 votes on the first and only ballot and was declared the nominee. There were instituted against 208 of the delegates regularly elected for Taft, contests on behalf of Roosevelt. These contests were avowedly instigated not for the purpose of really securing seats in the convention, not for the purpose of adducing evidence which would lead any respectable court to entertain the contests, but for the purpose of deceiving the public into the belief that Mr. Roosevelt had more votes than he really had, as the conventions and primaries were in progress for the selection of delegates. The hundred and thirty-eight contests were reduced by abandonment, formal or in substance, to seventy-four. The very fact of these 164 frivolous contests itself reflects upon the genuineness and validity of the remainder."

The resume then enumerated the contests, and reviews the arguments in each case. The review of the evidence in the contests embraced in the White House statement is certified to by Victor Rosewater, chairman of the National Committee, and Thomas H. Downing, chairman of the Credentials committee. As an appendix, the statement carries in detail the vote in the National committee on each of the contests, and a statement of the dates of the Taft and Roosevelt conventions in contested states. The objection of the latter is to show that the Roosevelt delegates were chosen after the regular conventions had named Taft representatives.

Another appendix is the report of the Credentials committee to the convention, in which the statement is issued by the Roosevelt committeemen attacking the majority of the committee was answered. In discussing the charge the report said:

"The statement as a whole in its insinuations of combination of unworthy motive, in its recital of alleged facts, is grossly and maliciously untrue. It was intended to convey the impression that the time for preventing cases was so limited as to prevent their being properly presented to the committee. The untruthfulness of this statement is clearly shown by the records of the committee and the newspaper reports of its deliberations. Not only did the rules make liberal provision for time in presenting the cases, but in every instance where the parties presenting the cases, or any member of the committee asked for an extension of time, it was granted."

Pestilent Female Mosquito.

The female mosquito often lives through the winter, hibernating in dark places like attics, clothes presses and the crevices between floor and baseboard or outdoors in the cracks in the bark of trees. As soon as the pools of water are warm enough in the spring so her eggs will not freeze she begins to lay, and ten days to three weeks later the young mosquitoes sally forth for their first taste of blood.

Stabbed by Umbrella.

Perhaps the strangest weapon ever used for killing was an umbrella. In October, 1908, a man named Ernest Smith was found dead in Chiswick High street, England. He had a punctured wound in the eye which had reached his brain and which the doctors agreed had undoubtedly been caused by the steel ferrule of an umbrella.

TRAINING SCHOOL MONEY FROM STATE

County Treasurer Has Received Draft for $3,500 From State Treasury Department.

County Treasurer Church has received from the state treasury department a draft for $3,500 which is the state's portion paid toward the support of the Rock county teacher's training school for the past year. The money has been paid following the filing of a certificate with the secretary of state by the county superintendent giving the cost of running the school for the past year. According to the state law the school shall have been maintained for a period not less than ten months before the state money shall be paid. The amount which the state will contribute toward the support of the school, says the law, is two-thirds of the cost of maintaining the school and shall not exceed $3,500 to any one school in any year. Consequently the Rock county institution is receiving the maximum amount from the state for the first year's money. The amount has been credited to the training school on the county treasurer's books and will be used in defraying the school's expenses.

He says by doing this he has hiked 12,058 miles, and also won a purse of $12,575, offered by the Stockmen's Association of Colorado.

PARKER PEN TEAM WINS CLOSE GAME

Machine Company Defeated in Sixth Inning When Their Opponents Scored Four Runs. Standing of the Teams.

	W.	L.	Pct.
Y. M. C. A.	7	1	.875
Parker Pen	6	1	.857
Hanson Company	5	2	.714
Machine Company	5	3	.625
Northwestern	4	4	.500
Gazette	2	6	.250
Recorder	1	6	.166
Lewis	0	7	.000

There was little change in the standing of the commercial league teams as the result of Saturday's play, as the Y. M. C. A. still holds their position as leaders, closely crowded by the Parker Pen, nine. The Hanson team went ahead of the Machine company's team by their victory over the Lewis nine and by the defeat of the machinists by the Parker Pen. The teams in the second division remained in the same positions and all but one of them lost, the Northwestern defeating the Recorder 6 to 4.

The closest and most keenly contested game of the season thus far was staged at Athletic Park between the Parker Pen nine and the Janesville Machine company's aggregation. Abraham was in superb form on the mound for the Parkers and Gamm's curves for the machinists were equally as puzzling for the penmen. Neither team scored until the fifth when each secured two tallies. In the sixth occurred the break. The machinists in their half scamped across the plate with three counts and the Parkers went one better and made it four. That was the last of the runs and the score stood 6 to 5 in favor of the penmen. Although the machinists dropped to fourth place in the league they are by no means out of the race for the championship honors and will be strong contenders throughout the rest of the season.

The Y. M. C. A. romped away with the second game at the Athletic park Saturday, defeating the Gazette by the score of 6 to 0. Green for the Y. M. C. A. dispatched a supply of curves which were mystifying to the printers who pounded the aid at crucial times. The game went for five innings. The Hanson team again demonstrated its ball playing abilities by winning from the Lewis nine by the score of 15 to 2 at the Fair grounds. The cabinet-makers were ahead at all stages and had an easy time taking the honors. The Northwestern team was the victor in the other game at the Fair Grounds, defeating the Recorder 6 to 4. This game was more evenly played than the Hanson-Lewis contest but the roundhouse men were better with the stick and fuster on the bases.

HOW ABOUT THIS?
Western railroads are sending their agents into Wisconsin with a view of inducing Wisconsin manufacturers to remove from this law-ridden state to some other where the state legislatures are not composed of such ultra-progressive types that they seek to restrict industry with all the legislation possible. Among the roads that have been most diligent in this respect is the Santa Fe. The general agent reports that he has been most successful. This means that some factories are to leave the state.

The following is a portion of a letter from a western city's commercial club which is seeking Wisconsin industries, asking for information as to the feeling in the state as regards the laws. "I wish you would give me some information regarding the present feeling of the Wisconsin manufacturers with respect to the state legislature on water power rights and income tax," writes this western gentleman, "and advise me if there are any reasons for discontent which should cause the Wisconsin manufacturers to contemplate removal from the state."

Here is a condition which exists only because this state has too much reform. It is time to call a halt and the way to do it is for each individual district in the state to see to it that men are sent to the next legislature that have the best interests of the state and their constituents at heart and are not blinded by the cry of reform. Ask the candidates how they stand on the question of reform before you pledge your support to their campaign. It is important for self-preservation whether you are a manufacturer or not.

BELONGS IN JOKE COLUMN.
Charles Lush, who at one time was one of the most strenuous reformers of the La Follette type in the state, but who at some time differed with his chief and retired from active participation in his campaigns, is now the provisional state committee of the Bull Moose party. Charles always has a tinge of sarcasm in his writings and his following appeal to the voters of the state to join the Roosevelt movement, really belongs in the joke column. It is as follows and worth preserving for a dull day when a laugh is needed.

"When the last republican convention adjourned it consisted of a large reactionary body with a small progressive tail. This tail did not belong there, but it was held in place by the waning power of the worm eaten tradition of 'regularity'—the sole accomplishment of the Wisconsin delegation in a convention that turned down regularity in committee but held it sacred in open session.

"The result of this has been to place Wisconsin progressives in temporary alignment different from that of the rest of the progressives in this country. In so far as it binds the working members of the republican organization. By the technical rules of procedure and precedent they were delivered to William H. Taft, the only band of progressives now in captivity in the United States. But the progressive voters are not thus corralled. They are free to investigate and act for themselves.

"At Chicago on August 5, in the College, there will begin at high noon the first convention of the National Progressive party, with representatives from every state in the union. It will be a real convention, not a meeting of a board of directors, brazenly cheating a majority of stockholders out of legitimate control.

"Back of it is a nationwide movement, sustained by the primary verdict of 1,042,000 republican voters. The great, sturdy voice of the potential northern states rings out for a progressive party, a progressive platform and the progressive candidate, Theodore Roosevelt.

"To all voters, but especially to the second lieutenants of the progressive republican organization in this state, I extend an invitation to attend this convention and investigate for themselves. There should be a man from every county there, truthful and conscientious, to report back to our people. Come and find out for yourselves. Do not take anybody's word for it; get the inside.

"The Wisconsin delegation will have headquarters at the Congress hotel. The sergeant at arms appointments, and the allotment of tickets to which Wisconsin is entitled at a national convention will be found there. "Come and see for yourselves, and the truth shall make you free."

HERE ARE FACTS.

If any candidate for the state senate or assembly or any other state office tells you that the income tax law is all right and that the farmers are not affected by the law, ask him to explain why they are not. The farmers of the state are affected.

They will be affected as long as this law remains on the statute books. The persistent talk, from official sources, that the farmers will not pay any income taxes under the present law, seems to be borne out by returns so far made public. Returns that began to come in this week show that Sheboygan county will pay about $13,000, of which the city of Sheboygan will pay over $9,000 and Plymouth about $2,000. This leaves $2,000 for the farmers to pay. La Crosse and Monroe counties will pay about $36,000, of which the city of La Crosse will pay $30,000 or five-sixths. No body needs an expert to know that the cities have been getting the butt end of the tax club during all this end of raising assessments. In season of the worm may turn. The politicians who are playing to the farmers may be breeding trouble for themselves may be fresh from the Census Bureau for interesting examples. La Crosse county has 1800 farmers, and 1200 farms of over 100 acres each. The total value of all farm property is a little less than $14,000,000. Monroe has 3,500 farmers and 2,200 farms of over 100 acres, and the value of all of over 100 acres, and the value of all farm property is over $21,000,000. "All farm property" covers stock. "All farm property" covers stock. Sheboygan county has 3,000 farmers and over 1,200 farms of over 100 acres and the value of all farm property is about $32,000,000. We are told that our dairy industry is the greatest in the state, bringing in over $80,000,000. Somebody must be making some money out of it. Wisconsin, in live stock, outranks in numbers every state east of the Mississippi and in the value every one of those states except Illinois and New York. The income tax will amount to 55 cents in Sheboygan will amount to 55 cents a head, or about one-seventh of the whole. In Monroe the farmers will pay about one-third of the tax and in pay about one-third of the tax. The wealth of La Crosse one-third. The wealth of the farmers must be more unproductive than the value of their lands and property would seem to warrant.

Strange as it may seem republicans can not vote for democratic candidates at the coming primaries any more than democrats can vote for republicans. In other words, republicans who would like to vote for Karel for the democratic gubernatorial nomination must vote the entire democratic ticket even though they would like to vote for some republican candidate for the senate or assembly. The same is true of the democratic list. You vote either a republican or democratic ticket at the primary. No split tickets go.

Mr. Whittet's friends throughout the senatorial district are much pleased with the manner the announcement of his candidacy has been received. Whittet is a good, clean man and his attitude on state affairs is in accord with the wish of the majority of the taxpayers of the district.

Summer outings for Janesville boys are popular. The Boy Scout camp up the river and the Y. M. C. A. camp at Delavan Lake meet a long-felt need. Citizens should support these movements as the benefits derived are of greater value to the rising generation than the cost at present.

Madison is entertaining the big newspaper men and publishers of the country at a three days' conference this week. Some of the topics to be discussed might be applied to any profession as well as newspaper work, but still they have singled out the newspapers for the attack.

Karel clubs with three hundred membership have been organized in Stoughton and Edgerton and one is contemplated for Janesville. This speaks well for the popularity of the former star athlete of the university.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

The Regular Fellow.
The Regular Fellow is one who kin smile. When everything goes dead wrong; Kin smile with a smile that's free from all guile. And tinker up some sort of song.

The Regular Fellow kin whistle a tune. When things seem to be breaking bad. He tries to be happy with what he has got. Forgetting what he might have had.

The Regular Fellow don't talk all the while. Like rattlebrained fellows all do. But when he says something, just make up your mind. It's something worth listenin' to.

The Regular Fellow don't tell what he's done. Or big things he's going to do soon. He just goes and does 'em and keeps his mouth shut. His secrets he tells to the moon.

The Regular Fellow has no time to stoop. And dig into other folks' ground. For small village scandal he cares not a whoop. He passes no gossip around.

The Regular Fellow speaks well of his kind. Or else he says nothing at all. There's no room for rubbish or junk in his mind. No room for the thoughts that are small.

The Regular Fellow does not slap your back. And brag that he's always your friend. But when you're in trouble and others all quit. He'll stand by you, right to the end.

According to Uncle Abner. No feller, not even a president or a justice of the Supreme Court, kin look dignified when his necktie is climbin' over his collar behind. Lem Higgins is so lazy that he kin sit on a barbed wire fence for an hour and a half.

If a feller hasn't got any record before he enters the race for the presidency, he gen'ally has one before he gets through.

It is just gettin' so that a feller kin amount to something in this world without havin' got his education by the blaze of a pine knot in a log cabin.

It always pays a feller to know how to say "No," especially in leap year. What has become of the old-fashioned gal who use to think it her duty to help mother wash the dishes.

There is hardly an inventor or a poet in this country who doesn't know how to trim culfs with a pair of shears.

Things are gettin' better in this country right along, but the Ultimate Consumer hasn't found it out yet. There may be a barkeep in this country who hasn't got a great vocabulary of slang, but Hank Tumms says he has never met one. Therefore there ain't no such animal.

BIG BALLOON PASSED OVER CITY SUNDAY MORNING AT EIGHT

Either the Uncle Sam or Kansas City No. 11 Seen Distinctly by Many Yesterday Morning.

Shortly after eight Sunday morning a big balloon, either white or aluminum color, passed over the city coming from a west by north course and disappearing towards the east by south course towards Delavan Lake. The big gas bag was in sight for several minutes and many viewed it distinctly. Two men were seen in the basket and they dropped a letter out which was mailed to the address in New York directed.

The balloon was one of the seven that started from Kansas City on Saturday afternoon in the elimination test for balloons for the Gre at Gordon-Bennett Cup race to be held later in the fall. According to dispatches the balloon that visited Janesville was either the Uncle Sam of Kansas City, or the Kansas City No. 11. The Kansas City No. 11 is aluminum colored and the Uncle Sam is white. Both these balloons were winners in the long endurance test, the Kansas City landing in Indiana and the Uncle Sam in Manassas, Virginia, 925 miles from Kansas City. These two balloons and the Drifter, which landed near Milwaukee, Sunday morning will represent America in the James Gordon-Bennett cup race to be held later in the fall.

A large red envelope, containing an order envelope addressed to the New York Aero club, New York City, was dropped from the balloon as it passed over the city and was picked up by Glenn G. Snyder in the road in front of his home at 307 Oakland avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Snyder watched the flight of the balloon from Oakland avenue and just as it passed out of their sight, about five minutes after they had first seen it, they noticed the envelope fluttering in the air.

The envelope contained a blank, with questions regarding the direction it was high or low in the air, which Mr. Snyder answered and forwarded to the New York Aero club.

I hereby announce myself as candidate upon the Republican ticket for the office of assemblyman from the first assembly district of Rock Co., Wis.

I have, since 1896, voted a straight Republican ticket and shall, of course, continue to do so.

I have supported the progressive wing of our party. Nevertheless I do not believe in a "blind allegiance" to every progressive "delegation"; for example, I am not in favor of the income tax law as it now stands.

I ask the support of every man who is willing to endorse the work done for Edgerton during the last two years.

Attention is called to a sample which is on display in the Gazette window.

Society Women Growing Taller.
Society women both in the United States and the United Kingdom undoubtedly are becoming taller with every passing generation. There are in the present decade many who are of good height, and it is noticeable that the debutantes of each succeeding year appear to have gained a little in their average of stature.

Spread Happiness.

LENGTHY STATEMENT

our committee met, rules were adopted by unanimous vote. No one desiring to make complaint as to the seating of any delegates was prevented from presenting his case. The committee even considered cases which had been decided by unanimous vote of the national committee, notably the Indiana case.

The committee on credentials of the Republican national convention consists of 53 members. The committee in every case sustained the decision of the national committee, and in no case by majorities of less than two-thirds. This statement of facts, indorsed by 40 members of the committee, who listened patiently through all-day and all-night sessions to evidence and argument in order to be able to judge cases intelligently and pass upon them honestly, should be a sufficient answer to the reckless, unwarranted, and untruthful assertions contained in the statement signed by 11 members of the committee, two of whom did not attend sessions of the committee, did not hear any of the evidence presented, and nearly all of whom indicated their bias by voting in every case for the delegates known to be favorable to Mr. Roosevelt, including numerous cases in which the action of the national committee had been unanimous for the Taft delegates.

As appendices the statement carried the majority and minority reports of the credentials committee on each of the contests.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Washington, D. C., July 29.—Brig. Gen. George T. Chase, who was promoted to his present rank only a month ago, was retired from active service today on account of age. Gen. Chase is a native of Macomb, Ill., and was graduated from West Point in 1871. He served in the line, mainly in the cavalry, up to his detail to the inspector general's department five years ago. In his earlier career he did much Indian fighting and for his bravery and skill he received many commendatory notices from his superior officers and from the War Department.

Archbald answered that he never consented that the note should be presented to either of the Bolands with a request on his part for discount, and that if such a thing were done, it was entirely without his knowledge.

As to the charge that a $500 note of his own, made to John Henry Jones was presented for discount to Charles H. Von Storch, president of a bank in Scranton and a lawyer, Judge Archbald answered that he made the note entirely for the accommodation of Jones and had no intention of improperly using his influence as a judge to induce Von Storch to discount it.

The charge that Judge Archbald had received large gifts of money from Henry W. Cannon, a cousin of his wife's, and a director in the Great Northern Railway and other corporations, was denied, though it was admitted that the judge made a trip to Italy at Cannon's expense. The judge averred he had no information that any corporation in which Cannon was interested might come before his court.

The allegation that while a District Judge in Scranton he accepted a purse of $525 made up by lawyers who practiced before the bar of his court, Judge Archbald admitted, but declared he had no knowledge that such a fund was being made up and that his first knowledge of it was when it was presented to him in a sealed envelope on the deck of the steamer on which he was sailing for Europe with the request that the envelope be opened after the ship had left port.

"The gift could not have been refused without impairing the motives of the givers," said the judge in his answer.

The charge that Judge Archbald appointed J. B. Woodward a jury commissioner in Scranton, while Woodward was an attorney for the Lehigh Valley railroad was met with the reply that Judge Archbald did not know of Woodward's connection with the railroad until several years after he had been appointed. He appointed Woodward, it was said, because the custom had been to select a democrat and the judge knew Woodward to be of that party and had known him intimately and favorably for years.

Judge Archbald replied to the charge that he had obtained credit from persons having suits pending before him, that it was too vague to admit of answer as it did not make specific allegations nor point out times or places at which it was alleged he attempted to obtain such credit. He denied that at any time or place he sought wrongfully or otherwise to obtain credit from or through any persons interested in any court in which he presided or was a member.

Court Adjourned.

Sitting as a court of impeachment, the senate today adjourned after hearing Judge Robert W. Archbald's formal answer to the charges against him without deciding if the trial shall go on this summer or be postponed until this fall.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

REMEMBER BABIES ALSO HAVE NERVES.

HOW largely conditions affect what we used to think were wholly moral matters is something which we are realizing more fully each year.

The other day a man who had been arrested for gambling told the judge that the mania was something beyond his control and asked to have his brain examined with the X-ray, to see if there were anything wrong in his brain structure, and, if possible, to have an operation performed that would cure him.

Bad temper, flightiness, hysteria, the desire for drink, and even the state of mind which leads a man to commit murder are nowadays considered in relation to the diseased brain or body which may be partially or wholly at fault.

Some people say all this is going too far. I don't think it has gone half so far as it will go and ought to go. "In my youth," declares a woman of the last generation, "nerves were called plain bad temper." Yes, madam, and perhaps a great injustice was done thereby. Undoubtedly there is some bad temper which is nothing more or less than "plain cussedness," but there is also much that is due to overwork, underfeeding, indigestion or any one of a hundred abnormal conditions. Besides, who shall say how much "plain cussedness" is a matter of brain structure? Surely, not anyone as ignorant as you or I.

But I am wandering far afield. What I started to say was this: Don't forget to give the children, and even the babies, their share in this new philosophy.

What do I mean by that. Well, let me tell you a little story of our neighborhood in answer:

A dear little baby, who had been very sweet and lovable during the first year of his life, seemed to completely change in his whole disposition as he grew older. He fretted, whined, and had tantrums when he was crossed until even his mother said, "If he belonged to anyone else I should say he was the most disagreeable child I ever knew."

One day the child had an ill turn, and his father called in a specialist. The specialist asked innumerable questions about his patient and finally told his parents that they had been giving him too much sugar and he had undoubtedly been suffering from a form of stomach trouble known as sugar indigestion, of which nervousness and irritability were invariable symptoms. The baby has been put on a diet and bids fair to be again his own sweet self.

Now do you know what I mean by giving the baby his share in this new philosophy? To be sure, it may be bad training, or a naturally bad disposition that makes bad babies, but don't forget that it may also be a bad stomach or liver.

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS

Edna K. Woolley

By Edna W. Woolley.

Remembering as an Exercise. Alice was admonished by the White Queen, you will remember — if "through the Looking Glass" had the part in your childhood that it should have — to "practice believing" every morning the funny queen said, "The more impossible it is the better practice it will be for you."

Lewis Carroll never told us how the advice worked out. But there is one similar rule that I believe will stand the test! And that is "practice remembering."

Try it and I will warrant it to save you many things — your friends, for instance, and your peace of mind at many times, and even your general faith in humanity at large.

The next time your child forgets the hour he was to be gone and doesn't come home until the shadows are way fallen, just practice remembering. Remember those golden hours in your own life when time just slipped away, and when it seemed a sacrifice to ask the hour, so joyous was life being to you. Perhaps it was back in your own childhood when such days were frequent. Perhaps it was just recently when you clung to the hour because it had been so long in coming. Anyway you remember such a time, don't you?

And doesn't it make you understand a bit better how the younger generation overstates his commands?

The next time your friend fails you, just look back and try to remember a lot of things. Remember the times when she did NOT fail you, when she might have. And remember the time — and you are much deserving if there is only one such time — when you, too, failed a friend in the same way.

Possibly you were careless, or possibly the selfish interest at stake overwhelmed you. Anyway, you had an excuse to make to yourself. Can't you make the same one now, if you remember it? Perhaps your friend forgave you. If she did, remember that; if she didn't, remember the heartache that followed; and don't make the same mistake.

The next time some one whom you had believed worthy of the highest trust yields to some temptation you had thought powerless with that particular person, just try hard to remember before you say, "There is no use; I have lost faith in everyone now."

Can't you remember an instance in your own life when conditions rose up around you too big to be combatted, or you were too tired yourself or those about you to be in your best mood, and you were weak, or petty, or unjust, or 100 things you had thought you were not. And so you failed those who had trusted you?

And it didn't mean that you really were less than you had believed, did it? Your will worshiped the good and true, didn't you? And would you want to be judged by that hour?

The next time you meet anything unpleasant, anything that means someone at fault, just stop quick and practice remembering as fast as you can. The average person who has passed out of childhood can remember moments or experiences or vagaries of thought and temper in his own life to make him ready to pardon almost any of those in the world about him — if he will only be honest in his remembering.

And he can remember something good in anyone he knows — probably some obligation owed to most of them.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am an old lady and I have always worn black or dark brown. A niece made me a present of a very pretty light blue cashmere, and it is so pretty that I would like to have it made up for me. But my family laughs at me and says "Grandma is getting her second childhood."

But I am so tired of the dark colors. Mrs. Thompson, and do you think it would be unbecoming in me to wish to wear something light and pretty? My hair is thin but white and soft and my complexion is not bad. I am pretty thin, but not very bent. Please tell me what you think.

BASHFUL. GRANDMA.

Bless your dear heart, Grandma! You will look perfectly delicious in that light blue cashmere. You will look pretty in pink, too, or lavender, or pure white. You have come to the time of life when you have a perfect right to wear the delicate tints of any color.

Have the dress made with a surprise waist and fill in the V with soft white lace. The skirt should be a little full, to look graceful.

You will find many pretty patterns for elderly women in the various woman's journals.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I know a young man who has very bad manners. He has a birthday pretty soon and we have always exchanged birthday presents. He is a good boy, but I think he ought to improve his manners, and I would like to make him a present this time of a book on etiquette that I saw in a store the other day. Do you think it would be a suitable present?

ESTELLE.

It might be a suitable present, but you probably will lose your friend. The worse a man's manners, the less he likes to be told about them.

Send him the usual kind of a birthday present and, if you want very much to reform his manners, you might have the book sent to him anonymously, so that he will not suspect that it comes from you.

When Dolly Dresses

DON'T forget we are going to the Goodwins' dance tonight," said John at the dinner table.

"The ideal!" exclaimed Dolly. "As if I'd forget that! Didn't I get a new dress for it?"

"Well, don't be late. You know how long it takes you to dress."

"Don't worry," blithely replied Dolly. "I'll be on time."

"When there's a train to catch," said John, mildly suggestive, "a minute makes a big difference."

"Don't begin to hurry me now or you'll have me all nervous," plaintively responded Dolly.

"All right," said John, "I was merely making a suggestion."

About an hour later John called upstairs, "Are you ready? It's pretty near time to start."

"Almost," called back Dolly.

In about ten minutes John called again, "Better hurry."

"In a minute."

Five minutes ticked by. Then John went up. "How're you making it?"

"Just as soon as I get this dress fastened. Here, Kid, hook me up."

The Kid went at the task. "Geel!" he exclaimed. "I'm glad I ain't a woman. Where do you begin, mother?"

"You hook it up the middle first; then there's a pier," looks over the side, and then the lace hooks over that."

The Kid stood appalled.

"Here, let me," said John.

He manfully tackled it.

"Thunderation!" he exclaimed in a few minutes. "Of all infernal ways to get riveted into clothes! We might as well give up that train."

"Oh, no. Hurry! Just hook it any old way and I can finish it when I get there."

"You can't go on the train split open down the back like a locust," said John, wrathfully. "I don't want people making remarks about my wife."

"Just hook it here and there," said Dolly, almost in tears. "I wouldn't miss that party for anything."

"You ought to have commenced to dress earlier. You knew how long it takes you."

"I did begin in plenty of time. But my hair wouldn't go up right, and things got tied into hard knots, and everything went wrong."

"There," said John, finishing with a pull and a slap. "I guess that is right. Now hurry."

Dolly hastily wound a scarf about her head and started on a run down stairs.

"Oh, I forgot my handkerchief. Run, Kid, and get me one. The right-hand top drawer."

The Kid scurried back.

"Oh, where are my gloves? John, dear, please! The glove box on the chiffonier."

John went up the stairs, two at a time.

As they neared the station they heard the roar of the coming train.

"Run!" said John.

They climbed into the car breathless.

"I wonder if I have everything," said Dolly. "Do I look all right?"

"Sweet as a peach," said John, dropping into a seat. "But I do wish you'd be on time."

"I do hurry all I can," contritely said Dolly.

"Your dress is all hooked wrong," remarked one of the women to Dolly in the dressing room. "Let me fix it."

"Oh, thank you. I never can fasten it right."

"Neither can I," responded the woman sympathetically.

HOUSEHOLD TALKS

Henrietta D. Gravel

Mushroom hunting through cool woodland and grassy meadows is a delightful pleasure, but as there are over a thousand varieties of the fungi possessing the same characteristics as to appearance and growth, some of which are excellent food, some disagreeable, others deadly poison, it would seem best to rely upon the market gardeners who make a business of raising mushrooms for one's supply.

If you are well enough acquainted with the family to select the esculent ones, you will probably know, too, that they must be absolutely fresh, for they decay quickly, besides being attacked by insects. If the stems are perforated with small holes it shows that worms have bored them and these should be discarded.

In gathering mushrooms, they should be cut, not pulled, and laid in the baskets with the gills uppermost.

There is no "silver spoon" test or any other way to determine which are edible, but by study of cultivated specimens and books and charts.

Having finally "caught" the mushrooms, cook them in the simplest ways — by broiling, frying lightly in a little butter, or stewing in cream. Meat stock is sometimes used with the cream, but if the mushrooms are juicy add as little liquor as possible and enjoy their rich flavor.

Cook them as soon as they are peeled, wash quickly and never let them lie in water. When they are to be used for garnishing, add a tablespoonful of lemon juice to the water they are cooked in. This blanches them.

The following simple recipes will surely please, and if more elaborate ones are desired you have only to ask the writer and they will be forthcoming.

Mushrooms with Eggs — Stew the mushrooms in a little water with a tablespoonful of butter; season with pepper and salt. When ready to serve, add a little cream, remove from the fire and add the beaten yolks of two eggs. Return to the fire to thicken and then serve immediately.

Escalloped Mushrooms — Put them in a baking dish with alternate layers of buttered crumbs; season with salt and pepper. Add cream or white sauce and cook, covered, in the oven twenty minutes.

To Broil — Remove the stems and dip the caps in melted butter; season and broil on both sides and serve on buttered toast. With a light salad these are excellent for luncheon.

Government chemists have proved within the last decade that the food value of mushrooms has been greatly overrated. Let no one tell you that a pound of mushrooms is equal to a pound of beef, for such is not the case. They are wholesome and delicate feasting, but are not meat substitutes in point of nutriment. Pliny, in his history of Roman life, written about the time Pompeii was destroyed, mentioned the cooking of fungi, saying: "This is the only food the voluptuaries prepare with their own hands, doing this at banquet tables and in their halls, and using amber knives and silver service for it."

Vital Question.

Elmer E. Brown, the new chancellor of New York University, tells the following anecdote: "Near the approach of the final examinations a professor was cautioning his class against neglecting a thorough review of the semester's work and was pointing out in a general way what the examination would cover. 'I'll pause now to answer any questions,' the professor added, 'and then I must go and prepare the examination papers and hurry them to the printer. There was a moment of silence. I'm ready to answer any questions,' the professor repeated, smiling around encouragingly. Then in the back of the room a thoughtful looking student with solemn face arose. Said he, 'If I may ask, who is the printer?'"

La Crosse.

The game known as "la crosse" was originally played by the Canadian Indians and from them adopted successively by the French and English settlers and by them introduced to the United States. The object of the game is to drive the ball through goals situated at each end of the field. The players are usually twelve on a side. In 1887 the La Crosse Association of Canada was formed and an Indian team visited Great Britain, creating great excitement. The game is one of real importance in the English sporting world.

Heart and Home Problems

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson:—I have such a bilious look all the time. My skin is sallow, and sometimes I have pimples. What do you suppose is the trouble?

A. M. L.

Possibly the trouble lies in your eating.

Cut out pastries and rich foods, and eat all the fruit and vegetables you can, both fresh and cooked. Drink plenty of fresh milk. Don't be afraid to drink a quart of water a day, between meals. Take outdoor exercise. And don't forget a dose of Epsom salts when you need it.

Your skin will soon clear and the pimples disappear with this treatment, unless you have some more serious trouble.

SEE CHURCH VALUES BY GIFT OF VISION

DR. J. W. LAUGHLIN TREATED
PERTINENT QUESTION IN SERMON SUNDAY.

NEW OUTLOOK ON LIFE

For The Man Who Has The Vision
Of The Christian Life And Is Not Blinded By A Material Existence.

Developing the thought that the Christian life gives man a vision of the experiences which make up the every day existence, by indifference proportion unobscured by indifference self-interest, Dr. J. W. Laughlin gave a strong sermon at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning. He spoke in part as follows:

"Blind men are not necessarily sightless, they are simply without vision. The gardener was not without eyes but he did not see the point in the recommendation which his employer gave him when he said, 'This man as been my gardener for over two years and during that time he has got more out of my garden than any man I ever employed.'"

"It is the gift of vision that differentiates men with reference to the church. The dull eye sees in church life only a habit that as grown up among us which we should tolerate when it does not interfere with other pleasurable pursuits. The Sunday School to such a one is a good thing which children may be sent when it is not convenient or when there is no opportunity to have a Sunday outing. The mid-week meeting is all right for those who desire such a service and ought to be maintained for the more pious who fear the world will go to the bad if it is neglected. But the average man—the man well filled with bread and meat, with good blood coursing through his veins, it is hardly worth while. It is pleasant after one has had his morning bath and is well dressed to attend a divine service, one meets congenial friends and can pass away a few pleasant hours of a Sunday morning; but as for any responsibility, as for any sacrifice of pleasure or profit to maintain such a service, the man or the woman without a vision sees no need."

"To such a man a negro is fit only for service work in the world; the Chinaman is the 'yellow peril' to be let alone or exploited at one's pleasure; the Italian is the 'dago' to do our dirty work, a menace to society because of his poverty and his low standard of living."

"But the man with a vision of life as Christ presented it has a new conception of things. He sees in church attendance a privilege; no bird seeks a sheltering bough with greater relish than he who enters the house of prayer to be inspired and invigorated and to place himself in touch with the forces working for the good of the community. He sees in the Sunday School a place for the development of character in the young people of the town. He sees in the prayer meeting a chance to lift the individual out of himself up into an atmosphere with God. There may be Negroes, Chinamen and 'Dagos,' but that 'Dago' is the countryman of Dante and Petrarch, of Raphael and Angelo, of Verdi and Salvi, of Carver, Mazin and Garibaldi, and to life that staid life up to touch that nature with the divine and make it live again, is to the man of vision the noblest work of God."

"This new conception of life came to Wilberforce and made him a philanthropist, it came to Saffsbury and made him a benefactor; it came to Gladstone and made him Christian statesman, John Vanaker, Governor Hoch, Leslie M. Shaw, M. Finney, Prof. Harry Fielding, Dr. Mason Knox, are some of the men of the present day whose lives have been transformed by its glory. It holds Jane Addams true to her work and Jacob Riis to his. It gave Lloyd

George grace to say that politics and commerce deal only fringe of life but the church deals with the greatest problems of human destiny. "To the man or woman who does not see beyond the present—whose vision is limited church activity is a consummate bore; to such, religion is not a program of life; it is an emergency call. There is no enthusiasm, no initiative, no spontaneity about such persons. They constitute the drag a constant log to the wheels of the chariot. From such all hopeful souls may pray, Good Lord Deliver Us."

The Cult of the Child. Children of modern life have an infinitely better time than had their juvenile ancestors, who were never supposed to sit down in the presence of their elders, or to speak until they were spoken to. Perhaps the latter-day trend errs too much on the other side, and the "cult of the child" has become wearisome.—Woman's Life.

SIDEWALK KETCHES.

THE POLITICAL BEE.

(By Howard L. Rann.)

THIS political bee is a sharp-toothed insect which crawls under a man's hat and puts up a loud buzzing just prior to a primary election. After a man has been stung by this bee two or three times, he isn't good for anything except to hold some office with a salary which has hard work keeping up with his grocery bill.

The political bee seldom attacks anybody twice in the same place. It generally starts with township trustee or member of the board of supervisors and works up by slow and steady stages to the governorship, when it becomes a violent and incurable disease and starts an insurgent movement in the direction of the White House.

Many a man has exchanged a good law practice and a clear conscience for the privilege of sitting on the committee for the pacification of the Deceased Red Men and borrowing large fluent chunks of currency at his home bank.

The young man who can take the political bee firmly between the thumb and forefinger and step on its neck, while clinging to some $30-a-month job, will never be turned out to grass in his old age by an ungrateful and irritated electorate.

This insect has a very debilitating effect upon patriots who are elected to the United States senate as it renders them so deaf that they are unable to hear anything except the voice of the common people calling them to the presidency. Sometimes they can't even hear vox populi's demand for more action and less ozone.

The presidential bee is an expensive variety which never lets go until the old-age limit steps in. It is getting so that nobody entertains this bee nowadays without having sources of supply that would choke a geyser. When the political bee becomes firmly established in a man's head, he will sacrifice all the comforts of home and an assured income for the chance to dislodge the onsets among his constituents and associate with candidates for the post office. When the buzzing ceases, all the average victim has left is a Prince Albert coat and the opportunity of beginning all over again.

ST. PAUL ROAD HAS IMMENSE SHOPS AT WEST MILWAUKEE

Employs Over Two Thousand Men in Constructing Its Engines and Car Supplies.

Amid tons of glowing steel scattering sparks far and wide under the blows of mighty trip hammers, 5,200 modern Vulcans ply their trade night and day in Milwaukee, almost unknown to her inhabitants, in one of the most extensive of the city's industries—the West Milwaukee car shops of the Milwaukee road.

A trip through the buildings of the company, covering 114 acres exclusive of track area, is a revelation in the wonders of the building of huge mogul engines, whose drive wheels reach higher than the height of the average man, of the fitting out of steel sleepers, buffet, parlor and day coaches, and of the handling of an army of men.

The intricacies of the methods prevailing at the shops seems almost impossible for the mind of the commoner to grasp. Who, for instance would imagine that the piston rods racing back and forth in the cylinders of a great engine were made up of small pieces of rusty iron—bolts, nuts, shavings, odds and ends which the average manufacturer kicks about as waste—welded into a solid mass and stronger when properly worked than the best of new steel?

Everything Works Smoothly.

In the repair and forge shops the visitor is almost blinded by the glow of white hot iron and the showers of sparks. The mighty roar of the blast furnaces, the almost savage shouts of workers, naked from the waist up, the incessant rap, rap, rap of the trip hammers so delicate that an egg placed between their jaws can be simply cracked and then removed, and the sight of blazing wheels fresh from the moulds being banded to and fro on steel pulleys, gives the impression of bedlam, by instead of confusion and disorder everything works smoothly and systematically.

The boiler shops are usually visited first. Here boiler plate an inch thick is punched with holes for bolts by machines whose jaws cut through the steel as if it were but tissue paper. In the assembling plant, the steel plates are quickly transformed into boilers, the boilers mounted on trucks, and the creation begins to assume the form of an engine. The drive wheels and other parts of the truck are attached, the cab bolted on, the painters called in and within a week a fire is built and a new engine, worth eight of the old style locomotives, roll out upon the tracks ready for service.

Build 20 Per Cent of Road's Engines.

In the repair shops a score of these engines stand in various stages of construction, two of them being finished every week. Old engines are brought in for overhauling, others to be dismantled and their parts to be used on re-assembled machines. The West Milwaukee car shops build 80 per cent of all the locomotives used on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad.

In the car shops proper, passenger and freight cars in all stages of construction cover the yards of track. It takes just seven minutes to assemble one of the trucks used under the cars, thousands of steel axles, wheels, piles of bolts and all the accessories lying near at hand. Forty huge freight cars, 60 feet long and capable of carrying tons of merchandise, are turned out each week.

Practically all of the men are skilled laborers. Every department is made up of union men and the differences between the employer and laborers are settled by arbitration. In the hot forge rooms and foundries the men are given practically free rein—if any are overcome by the heat or feel indisposed, they are allowed to go to their homes for the rest of the day. Only the foremen of the various departments are able to speak with the superintendents, orders from the management coming through them.

Practically all the manufactured products not made at the shops come from Milwaukee firms. The cast iron is made by the Falk company, which is located near the shops. The lumber used in the manufacture of cars comes from the forests owned by the company and brought to Milwaukee on the company's trains.

A ride about this section of the country reveals all crops in fairly good condition. Corn and tobacco are making fine growths since the rains. Barley and rye are about harvested and were good crops. Hay is done and the yield was splendid, a large new cant being alfalfa. The potato bids fair to be large.

Don't forget that Mrs. Babler will sing and Miss Ochof will play at the Congregational church Thursday afternoon and evening.

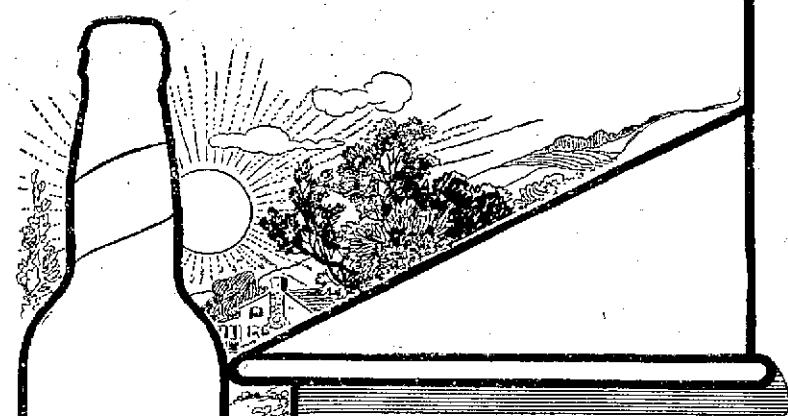

Messrs. May Rodrick and Grace Marsh are looking for a new home.

UNCLE WALT The Post Philosopher

Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams
BY WALT MASON

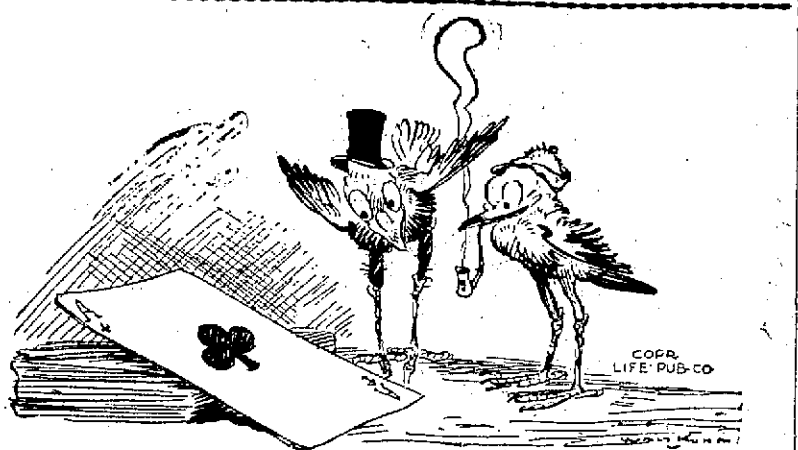

Old Baker, of the gold brick store, spent rolls of roubles by the score, announcing special sales of cheese and setting hens and bumblebees. These goods, he said, were fresh and clean, the finest goods he'd ever seen. He had to sacrifice them all to buy his stock of junk for fall. All goods had been marked down one-third. The people took him at his word and blew themselves for shoes and hats, and garments that would hide their shams. And soon they found the rot; the goods that he declared so nice were mighty dear at any price. He fooled them this way divers times, and gathered in a lot of dimes, but soon they tumbled to his game and swore at mention of his name. The cobwebs grow in Baker's store; he has no business any more, and every time a man goes past, he sighs: "The sheriff's come at last!" There's nothing like the truth in adds if you would gather in the seeds. Just fool your patrons once or twice—the customers who have the price—and you will see them chase themselves to buy from other merchants' shelves.

Find Crab Usurp.

Students of the Crustacea often find the cod a useful assistant collector. Thus the circular crab seems to be a favorite food of cods and rays, and it was chiefly from the stomachs of these fish that some of the oldest naturalists obtained their specimens. Another hunting ground of the naturalist is the sailing ship which has been in foreign parts.

Children's Laughter Closed Park.
The Pushkin Park, the only children's playing ground at Sevastopol, which was opened by public subscription, has been closed by administrative order because the children's laughter and shouting interfered with the work of the police officials in their chancellery.—Pall Mall Gazette.

"Yes, and would you believe that this little chap is greater than a King!"

Would He Advertise?
Mr. Meekins was habitually all that the first syllable of his name might imply, but a day came when the worm turned at last and spoke his mind freely to that other member of the domestic firm who had assumed leadership. Mrs. M. stood aghast and then remarked ominously:
"Timothy, you'd regret those words if you should suddenly lose your wife."
"Oh, I don't want to lose her," came the cheerful retort, "but there are times when I'd like very much to mislay her for a few hours."—Harper's Bazar.

The Call.
Wife—You know that Mrs. Newcomb moved in down the street Monday, so I called today.
Hub—Well, well! How like poker this "social game" is.
Wife—How do you mean?
Hub—Why, in poker you also call when you want to see what the other person has.

Purely Speculative.
"I have always been interested," said little Blinks, "in the utilization of waste. Now where do you suppose all these bursted tires go to in the end?"
"I don't know," said the genial philosopher, "but if they go where most people consign 'em there must be a terrible smell of rubber in the hereafter."—Harper's Weekly.

Busy at Bridge.
"Miss Mabel, I should like to speak to you."
"Just a minute."
"I should like to ask you to be my wife."
"You are interrupting the bridge game, Mr. Wombat. Wait until I'm dummy."

Her Responsibilities.
It is a woman's privilege to change her mind. It is a time-old saying. All privileges carry great responsibilities. If she has power to change her mind, she has absolute control over her thoughts. And if they be impure, or mean, or shallow, or false, or ungenerous, she alone is to blame.

PUBLIC IS ASKED TO AID IN THE MATTER

Persons Answering Fraudulent Advertisements Asked to Notify Gazette.
The Gazette is desirous of keeping out of its columns fraudulent advertising and asks the assistance of its patrons to that end.
There are any number of concerns in the country who make a living through a nicely worded advertisement, offering golden opportunities, and these unscrupulous people find fertile ground for work among the masses.
Many orders are received in the Gazette mail for advertising which are returned as objectionable and where there is a question as to the qualifications the advertisement is omitted. All newspapers have this experience.
But even with the utmost care there will be an occasional advertisement which will pass the scrutiny of the business department of the paper and find its way into the columns.
The Gazette will deem it a favor if you will report to the office any trouble which may have been experienced through the answering of such an advertisement.

Any Salable Article Will Find a Buyer Here

THE RATE FOR ADVERTISEMENTS in these classified columns is 1/2-cent a word cash each insertion. No order for less than 25 cents. The charge rate is 1 cent per word. Address can be given care of Gazette if so desired.
